CRP Industries Announces New Director of Business Development for Complex Reman

- CRP adds Susan Stanley to its CRP Remanufacturing team

Cranbury, NJ... CRP Reman (www.crpreman.com), a division of CRP Industries Inc., is pleased to announce the addition of Susan Stanley as Director of Business Development for Complex Reman working out of its Ann Arbor, Michigan R&D facility.

Stanley will be responsible for securing and managing new opportunities for CRP's Complex Remanufacturing business along with managing a portfolio of existing OEM and Tier 1 partners, focusing on relationship building and strategic growth while delivering on CRP's customer first promise. She said, "I am excited to collaborate with the talented CRP team in Ann Arbor to scale our Complex Reman business. By combining my global automotive experience and background in multinational sales with CRP Reman's innovative engineered solutions, I see a tremendous opportunity to develop new partnerships, strengthen strategic relationships, and unlock new growth avenues that support the continued success of our customers."

Before joining CRP Industries, Stanley accrued an impressive resume of multinational and global experience from companies like; Hilco Global, Bendix Corporation, Fiat Group, Chrysler LLC, DaimlerChrysler de México, and Chrysler International.

Scott Shea, Chief Operating Officer, welcomes Stanley stating: "Susan brings deep expertise and success in Sales and Marketing, Operational Excellence, New Product Development, and Finance. She has a proven ability to partner with key stakeholders to develop new business and implement strategic improvements across a variety of areas and industries. We look forward to the positive impact Susan will have on the growth trajectory of our complex remanufacturing business."

Stanley holds MBAs in International Finance and International Marketing, as well as a BA with honors in Spanish Literature and Philology. She is fluent in Spanish and Portuguese.
